Scene 1

(Morning. It's winter. Akbar and Birbal are pacing the floor in the palace balcony. The balcony offers a good view of the river.)

Akbar : Birbal, I have heard that the water of this river is extremely cold.
Is that true?

- Birbal : Yes, Your Majesty, I have also heard the same.
- Akbar : What do you think will happen, if a man stands in the cold water all through the night? Will he die?
- Birbal : Certainly, Your Majesty, no ordinary man can survive after staying for such a long time in the cold water.
- Akbar : (Thinks for a while and says) I have an idea!
(The emperor whispers something in Birbal's ear. Birbal is surprised at the Emperor's words.)

Scene-2

(Afternoon. Town market place. A town-crier beats his drum loudly and people come, leaving their work and gather around him.)

Town-crier: (loudly) Listen! Listen! By the order of the Emperor, anyone who stands in the cold water of the river in front of the King's palace all through the night will be amply rewarded. Listen! Listen!

(He moves to another busy area to make the same announcement.)

(People stand in groups and discuss the announcement. Nobody is ready to accept the challenge. A poor washerman also listens to the announcement and whispers in his wife's ear.)

- Denu : Kusum, this is a good opportunity. I should try my luck. If I succeed in standing in the river, I'll get the big reward and we'll be able to live well.
- Kusum : No! No! Don't ever think of taking such a risk.
- Denu : You needn't worry. Nothing will happen to me. After all, I am used to washing clothes in cold water everyday.

Scene - III

(Night. The washerman goes and stands in the middle of the river. Some people come and ask him not to risk his life.)

One man : I feel sorry for this poor man. Why does he want to kill himself?

Another : He is crazy! Doing such a foolish thing for money! Well, let us pray for his safety.

(Next morning, Denu is shivering badly, He stood in the river all through the night. He has successfully reached the target. People congratulate him on his wonderful achievement.)

Kusum : (happily) Oh! so you have done it! Thank God, you are alright! I was so worried. I kept on praying for your safety the whole night. At last God has heard our prayers and you are the luckiest person to get the big reward. I am really proud of you.

Scene - 4

(Akbar's court. The Emperor is sitting on his throne. Birbal is beside him. The courtiers and guards are standing in the Darbar. Denu and his family enter the Darbar. They bow before the king).

Denu : Salutations. Your Majesty.

Akbar : Come, You are indeed a brave young man. You certainly deserve the reward.

(A maid brings a silver tray laden with gold coins.)

(As Akbar is about to give the reward to Denu, a courtier interrupts).

Courtier : Your Majesty, what are you doing? This man does not deserve the reward, as he did not stand in the cold water without any help.

All the courtiers were surprised and wanted an explanation.

Courtier : Your Majesty, actually the lights from your palace kept the washerman warm all through the night.

Akbar : (thoughtfully) Hmm - you have a point. Well, in that case, there is no question of a reward.

(Poor Denu goes away sadly with his family. Birbal is unhappy about this.)

Scene -5

(The next day, at Akbar's court. All are sitting, but Birbal's seat is empty.)

Akbar : Why has Birbal not come yet. He is usually punctual.

(A messenger arrives).

Messenger: Your majesty, the Minister is in his house, and he says he will be late today.

Akbar : Why?

Messenger: Your Majesty, he is cooking food and will take long.

Akbar : (angrily) What nonsense! Why? We shall go and find out.

(Akbar gets up and walks quickly towards Birbal's house followed by some courtiers and guards).

Scene - 6

(Birbal's House. Birbal is sitting near a fire on the ground.

Far above it, balanced on a tall tripod, is a cooking pot.)

Akbar : Birbal ! How stupid !!! You have kept the pot so far above the fire.
How can this fire cook your food?

Birbal : (with a twinkle in his eye). If this fire can't cook food in this cooking pot, how can the lights of your palace warm Denu in the cold water of the Yamuna?

(Akbar immediately realizes his wrong decision and calls for the washerman.)

Scene - 7

(Next day at Akbar's court. Denu comes with his family to the Darbar. Akbar hands the tray of coins to Birbal, who gives it to Denu. Denu as well as his family are very happy. People cheer and clap. People appreciate the justice done to Denu.)
