

Introduction:

In 1885, Dr. A.O. Hume transformed into a political party in the form of a social and ideological alliance by expressing feelings of dissatisfaction with different social groups and people of different faiths and ideologies. Even in the pre-independence days, many organizations and parties existed within the Congress with their structure and institutional structure. Groups formed within parties are factions. The coalition nature of the Congress party encouraged various factions based on ideological views or personal aspirations or enmity. Before the first general election of 1952, some powerful and opposition parties came into existence, which gained only as a symbol of representation to maintain the democratic feature. These parties kept the ruling party in check with mutual respect between the leaders of the Congress as well as the leaders of the opposition, preventing resentment and preparing the leaders.

After independence, our leaders became aware of the important role of politics in democracy because they wanted to pursue politics as a way to solve problems as well as make decisions and advance the public interest.

1. The Challenge is to Build Democracy

The Election Commission of India was established in January 1950. Sukumar Sen is the first Chief Election Commissioner. India's absolute size and low literacy rate were some of the challenges in holding the 1952 general elections. Despite these challenges, the 1952 election was a success.

Change in Voting Pattern

In the first general election, it was decided to place a box inside each polling station with the symbol of each candidate. By 2004, the entire country had switched to electronic voting machines (EVMs).

2. The 1st three general elections

The Congress dominated the first three general elections. It has many famous faces like Jawaharlal Nehru, C Rajagopalachari, Vallabhbhai Patel. In addition, Jawaharlal Nehru was an attractive and very popular leader. It has worked at the grassroots level as well as at the top level in Congress. Congress gained popularity by participating in the civil disobedience movement.

The Communist Party of Kerala came to power for the first time in the world in 1957 through democratic elections. It was the first state to form a non-Congress government after independence.

3. The dominant nature of Congress

The dominance of the Congress party is in a state of democracy. The roots of the extraordinary success of the Congress party go back to the legacy of the freedom struggle. Congress has brought together different groups, whose interests are often contradictory. By the time of independence, the Congress had transformed into a rainbow-like social alliance that broadly represented India's diversity in terms of classes and castes, religions and languages and different interests. This coalition attitude gave extraordinary strength to the Congress.

4. Group Tolerance and Management

Groups are groups within a party that have different ideologies. Some of these categories are based on ideological perspectives, but very often these categories are rooted in personal ambitions and competition. The coalition nature of the Congress party tolerated and encouraged various sections.

DO YOU KNOW?

Electronic Voting Machine (EVM): A voting machine for recording the performance of voters on an electronic device used by the electoral process.

First Past the Post System: This is a simple majority system in which the candidate with the highest number of votes is declared elected.

Ideological Oriented Party: It is a party that formulates policies and decisions based on ideological considerations.

Interest-based party: This party protects and promotes specific interests such as caste, community, region, tribe, etc.

Charismatic Leader Oriented Party: This is a party where the leader is in a very strong position and the party is at the center.

5. The rise of Opposition Parties-

Almost all non-Congress parties have their roots in any opposition party of the 1950s. These opposition parties have provided constant and frequent ideological criticisms of the policies and practices of the Congress party. This kept the ruling party in check and often changed the balance of power in Congress.

6. Socialist Party

The Congress Socialist Party (CSP) was founded in 1934 by a group of young leaders who wanted a more radical and egalitarian Congress. In 1948, Congress amended its constitution to bar its members from dual party membership. The Socialists had to form a separate Socialist Party in 1948. He criticized the Congress for favoring investors and landlords and neglecting workers and farmers.

7. Communist Party of India (CPI)

In the early 1920s, inspired by the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia, communist groups sprang up in various parts of India. In 1951, the Communist Party decided to abandon the path of violent revolution and run in the next general election. A K Gopalan, S A Dange, E M S Namboodiripad; Prominent leaders of the CPI were P C Joshi, Ajay Ghosh and P Sundaria.

8. Bhartiya Jana Sangh [BJS]

The Bhartiya Jana Sangh was founded in 1951 with Shyama Prasad Mukherjee as its founding president. It emphasized the idea of one nation, one culture and one nation and believed that the country would become modern, progressive and powerful based on Indian culture and traditions. The

The Bhartiya Jana Sangh was founded in 1951 by Shyama Prasad Mukherjee with the ideology of one nation, one culture and one nation and called for the reunification of India and Pakistan in a united India. The Independent Party was formed in August 1959 following the Congress Nagpur resolution calling for land restrictions. Its main leaders were C. Rajagopalachari, K.M. Munshi, N.G. Ranga, and Meenu Masani. Its ideology emphasizes a free economy and less government involvement in controlling the economy and suggests closer ties with the United States.

9. Independent party

The Independent Party was formed in August 1959. The party was led by old Congressmen like C. Rajagopalachari, K M Munshi, N G Ranga and Meenu Masani. The party criticized the state's strategy for economic development, centralized planning, nationalization and public sector intervention. Instead, it opted for free private sector expansion.

SUMMARY

After independence, our leaders became aware of the important role of politics in democracy because they wanted to pursue politics as a way to solve problems as well as make decisions and advance the public interest. As a result, the Election Commission of India came into existence in January 1950, with Sukumar Sen becoming the first Chief Election Commissioner to conduct elections in the country. The Commission is required to formulate electoral rolls with eligible voters and constituency boundaries to conduct free and fair elections. India's first general election has become a milestone due to its competitiveness and encouragement. His critics are wrong for not holding elections in proven partnership, fair results and poverty. The Congress party won a landslide victory in the 1952 elections but was not in power in states like Travancore-Cochin i.e. Kerala, Madras and Orissa. Recognition in the freedom struggle, popularity of populist leaders, comprehensive manifesto for every section of society and party consensus-building role led to Congress domination in India.
