Chapter Overview

This highlights how kindness and compassion can bring about a change in anyone. In the story, Lushkoff a beggar is given work by Sergei, an advocate. Lushkoff agrees to do the work but the work given to him is done by an old woman Olga (Sergei's cook). Her kindness and compassion help bring a change in Lushkoff's way of life. Because of Olga's selfless help, Lushkoff starts living a respectable life and becomes a responsible man.

Summary of the Chapter

Sergei Stopped by a Beggar

One day Sergei, an advocate was stopped by a beggar. The beggar requested Sergei to have pity on him. The Beggar also said that he had ate nothing since last three days. The Beggar told Sergei that he had been a school teacher for eight years but had lost his job about a year ago.

Sergei looked at the beggar. He was wearing a ragged, Fawn (light yellowish) coloured overcoat. He had dull drunken eyes and a red spot on either cheek. The Beggar told Sergei that he had found a job in the province of kaluga and needed money to go there.

Sergei Recognises the Beggar

While talking to the beggar, Sergei recognised him by his shoes. One of the beggar's shoes was high and other was low. Sergei told the beggar that he had met him earlier on Sadovya street and at that time he told him that he was a student. Sergei threatened the beggar that he would call the police.

The Beggar Tells the Truth

After Sergei's threat, the beggar told that he had lied to him for money. He told Sergei that he was in a Russian singing group, but he was thrown out because of his drinking habits. Now, he couldn't find work anywhere and did not have any other option rather than to beg. So, he lied to get money.

Sergei Offers Work to the Beggar

After listening to the beggar's truth, Sergei offered him work of chopping wood. The beggar does not wanted to work, but he agreed because of shame. So, Sergei took the beggar to his home. He called his cook, Olga and informed her to take the beggar into wood-shed. Olga gave the beggar an axe to chop the wood. The Beggar tried to chop the wood but he could'nt do so. Sergei realised that he kept a drunken man who was too weak to work in cold.

Different Types of Work for the Beggar

The wood was chopped after an hour. The Beggar was given money (half a rouble) and informed that he could come to Sergei's house in the starting of the month to get work.

The beggar was given various kinds of work. He would remove the snow, cut wood, clean the rugs and mattresses, etc. When Sergei was shifting into a new house, the beggar was called to help in packing and carrying the furniture.

The beggar looked weak and unhealthy. He hardly help Sergei in carrying the furniture and in shifting. Sergei thought that he should not give him hard work and decided to sent him to his friend for an easy work. After shifting, Sergei called the beggar and got to know that his name was Lushkoff. Sergei gave Lushkoff a letter and told him to go to his friend who would give him a new job.

Sergei Meets Lushkoff after Two Years

After two years on one evening, Sergei met Lushkoff at the theatre. He found Lushkoff near the ticket window. He was wearing a coat collar of curly fur and a sealskin cap. Lushkoff informed Sergei that he had become a notary and was now earning 35 roubles a month. Lushkoff thanked Sergei for his help and guidance. He also thanked Sergei's cook Olga who (according to him) actually changed him.

Lushkoff's Confession

Lushkoff confessed to Sergei that Olga's kindness had changed him. It was Olga who would scold him and cry for him. Lushkoff told Sergei that he did not cut any wood for him. It was Olga who cut the wood. Olga's caring actions changed his heart and helped him become a responsible person.

Think About it (Page 67, 68)

- Has Lushkoff become a beggar by circumstance or choice?
Ans. Lushkoff became a beggar by choice as he did not want to work. He was a drunkard and was thrown out of the singing group in which he sang, due to his drinking habit.
- What reasons does he give to Sergei for his telling lies?
Ans. Lushkoff told Sergei that nobody would take pity on him. He also told that nobody would give him anything if he told the truth. So, he had to lie to earn money.
- Is Lushkoff a willing worker? Why, then, does he agree to chop wood for Sergei?
Ans. No, Lushkoff was not a willing worker. He agreed to chop wood for Sergei because of shame and guilt. He was trapped in his own words. He had told Sergei that he had to beg because he could not find any work.
- Sergei says, "I am happy that my words have taken effect." Why does he say so? Is he right in saying this?
Ans. Sergei says that on seeing Lushkoff coming to his house regularly for work. By this Sergei means as he had encouraged Lushkoff to leave begging and start working.

- No, he is not right in saying so as Lushkoff did not do any work at his place and all his work was done by Olga, Sergei's cook.
- Lushkoff is earning thirty five roubles a month. How is he obliged to Sergei for this?
Ans. Lushkoff is obliged to Sergei for his respectable life. Before meeting Sergei, Lushkoff was a beggar who lied to get money. Sergei offered him work. It was at Sergei's house, where Lushkoff met Olga, a kind old lady who led him to change his life. When Sergei was confident that Lushkoff was ready for a proper job, he sent Lushkoff to his friends house for a new job. Due to this, he became a notary who earned 35 roubles a month.
  - During their conversation Lushkoff reveals that Sergei's cook, Olga, is responsible for the positive change in him. How has Olga saved Lushkoff?
Ans. During his conversation with Sergei, Lushkoff revealed that it was Sergei's cook, a kind and compassionate old lady named Olga, who was responsible for a positive change in him. When Lushkoff met Olga, she called him by various names and even shout on him.
 She would then weep for his miserable condition and life. Olga would also cut the wood that Lushkoff had to cut. Her selfless acts gradually made Lushkoff quit drinking. He, thus, started working diligently and was now a respectable man.
