Introduction :

In ‘Should Wizard Hit Mommy ?’ John Updike presents the worldview of a little child. Jo warmly responds to her father’s story-telling. But she can’t excuse Roger Skunk’s mother for making poor little Roger smell bad again. Her hero must smell like roses and must not stink at any cost. So she wants her father to make a little change in the story. She wants him to tell a different story in which the wizard takes a magic wand and hits Roger Skunk’s mommy.

Summary :

1. A Two-Year Old Custom of Story Telling

Jack used to tell stories to his daughter Jo in the evenings and for Saturday naps. Every story was a product of his head. This custom began when she was two. Each new story was a slight variation of the basic tale. Every story had a small creature usually named Roger. It could be Roger Fish, Roger Squirrel or Roger Chipmunk. In every story, Roger went to the wise owl and the owl would send Roger to the wizard.

2. Story of Roger Skunk

Today’s story was about Roger Skunk. It was a new animal. They must talk about it at the nursery school. Jack had got a new hero. He started the story : “Once upon a time, in the deep dark woods, there was a tiny little creature by name Roger Skunk. He smelled very bad. He smelled so bad that the other little creatures would not play with him. They would run away from him. Roger Skunk would stand there all alone. Two little round tears would fall from his eyes. Little Jo could already guess what would be the storyline next. She asked “Won’t he see the owl” ? Jack continued. There lived a big wise owl in the tiptop of a tree. Roger Skunk told him his pathetic tale. The wise owl advised him to go to the wizard.

3. Roger Skunk Meets the Wizard

At last, Roger Skunk came to a little white house after crossing the dark woods and the swamp. A little old man came out. He had a long white beard and a pointed blue hat. Roger Skunk told the wizard how all the little animals ran away from him. He smelled very bad. The wizard asked Roger not to get very close to him. Inside the house, all magic things were jumbled together in a big dusty heap. The wizard demanded seven pennies. Roger had only four. He started crying. The wizard sent him to a magic well where Roger found three pennies. He took them back to the wizard. The wizard was happy and made him smell like roses. All other little animals gathered around him. Now, he smelled so good. They played games and laughed all afternoon.

4. Roger Skunk’s Mommy doesn’t like the Change

Roger Skunk’s mommy asked him what that ‘awful smell’ was. Roger replied that he himself smelled like roses. The wizard made him smell like that. She told Roger that they were going right back to “that very awful wizard”. But Roger cried that he smelled so bad earlier that all other little animals ran away. The mother said that she didn’t care for that. Roger Skunk would smell the way a little Skunk should smell. They went to the wizard and he made him smell very bad again.

5. Jo wants the Story Changed a Little

Jo didn’t like the end of the story. Poor little Roger Skunk was made to smell bad again. She wanted her father to make a little change in the story. She wanted her father Jack to tell her that the wizard took “that magic wand and hit that mommy.” She insisted on making that change in the story.

[CBSE Marking Scheme, 2016] 6

OR

Jack ended the Roger Skunk story by saying that when the ~~in set~~ skunk's mother comes to know about the wizard changing her son's smell, she goes to wizard and hits him on the head. She asks him to revert back her son's smell. In the wizard obliges and the Roger skunk starts smelling awful again.

Jo does not agree with the ending of the story. She wants the wizard to hit back the mommy and not to change Roger's sweet smell of roses.

she says so because she is touched by the plight of the skunk. According to her, the ~~st~~ mommy was stupid. She empathises with Roger skunk as the other creatures didn't play with him because he smelled bad. This depicts the difference in perspectives of a child and an adult. As a child, Jo only sees the facts. But Jack wanted to convey a moral to Jo. He wanted to emphasise the fact that what parents' decisions for the children are always right.

[Topper's Answer 2016]

Detailed Answer : According to Jack's ending of the story, Roger's mother hit the wizard with an umbrella. He, then, acts as she wishes and Roger Skunk starts smelling bad again. Jo wants the ending of the story to be the other way. She wants the wizard to hit on the head of the 'stupid mommy'. She wants the wizard to refuse to make Roger smell bad again.

Children look at this world from a different perspective. They look at people and things quite differently than the way adults do. Their perspective on life reflects simplicity and innocence. Jo has deep sympathy for Roger Skunk. Roger's bad smell kept all the little animals away from him. The little Skunk stood alone and wept. The wizard made Roger smell of roses. He was happy. Other little animals were now attracted towards him. They now played and danced with him.

Jo's main anger is against the "stupid mommy" of Roger Skunk. It was she who forced the wizard to make Roger Skunk smell very bad again. The hero of the story is always a role model for children. The tender-hearted Jo is shocked at the attitude of that 'stupid' mommy. She wants Roger's mommy to be punished. The wizard must hit on her head hard with his magic wand.

Q. 2. How does Jo show her independent thinking in the story, 'Should Wizard Hit Mommy' ?

[Comptt. Delhi / Outside Delhi 2018]

OR

[Delhi Set I, 2016]

Ans. Value Points :

- she suggests the animal whose story her father was to create, (skunk)
- she keeps interrupting the story with suggestions about the animals, the skunk was going to meet, (owl, wizard etc.)
- asking whether magic spells were real

- she is in a reality phase – asks her mother whether spiders really ate bugs as suggested by her father
- catching her father when he mentions Roger Fish instead of Roger Skunk
- protesting when the mother in the story gets the smell of roses changed to the foul smell of the Skunk
- insists wizard hits the mother

(any 6)

[CBSE Marking Scheme 2018-19] 6

Detailed Answer : The world of children is quite different from that of adults. Their world is a dreamy and magical world. It is a world of fantasy and romance. There is no place for ugliness and stink in their world. Roger Skunk is the hero of the story. Jo never wanted her hero to be so ugly and stinky. It offends her fairness and justice. Therefore, Jo disapproves of Jack's ending of the story of Roger Skunk. She wants her father, Jack, to tell the same story in a different way. The wizard must take his magic wand and hit Roger's mommy hard for not understanding Roger's feelings. Little Jo wants 'that stupid mommy' to be punished. Her crime is that she went to the wizard and compelled him to make her son smell bad again. Jo wants him to smell nice so that he can play with other little animals. She doesn't want Roger to feel sad and lonely for no fault of his. 6

Q. 3. Why did Jo feel that the Skunk's mommy was stupid ?

[Foreign, Set-I, II & III, 2014]

OR

Why does Jo want that the wizard should hit the mommy? Does her stand reflect a child's perspective on life ? What is your choice ?

Ans. Value Points : She insisted on the Skunk smelling the way Skunks did, though she knew he would have no friends / was angry with the wizard for changing him / hit the wizard and got the smell changed. [CBSE Marking Scheme, 2014] 6

Detailed Answer : Children look at this world from a perspective which is different from that of an adult. Their perspective on life reflects their fantasy and innocence. Jo considers little Roger Skunk the hero of the story. She has a deep sympathy for Roger Skunk. Her expressions while listening to the story of poor Roger reflect her feelings. Roger faced segregation. His bad smell kept all little animals away from him. The little Skunk stood alone and wept. When the wizard made Roger smell of roses, he was happy. Other little animals were now attracted towards him. They played and danced with Roger who smelled like roses now.

Jo's main anger is against the "stupid mommy" of Roger Skunk. It was she who forced the wizard to make Roger Skunk smell very bad again. The hero of the story is always a role model for children. The tender-hearted Jo is shocked at the attitude of that 'stupid mommy'. She wants that Roger's mommy must be punished. The wizard must hit on her head hard with his magic wand.

Children think like stories and always want happy endings whereas adults know that in real life, there may not be always a happy ending.

Q. 4. The same situation can be viewed through two different perspectives. How does "Should Wizard Hit Mommy ?" establish this point through the views of Jack and Jo ?

[HOTS] [Outside Delhi Set-I, 2014]

Ans. As the child grows into maturity, his perspective and vision of life change gradually. A child views things at a superficial and sensory level but a grown up's vision is realistic, reflective, philosophical and even psychological. Viewed from the study of the story "Should Wizard Hit Mommy ?" Jo, a child of four, like most children of her age, prefers to live in dreams and fantasies. She is hostile by nature and would like to wreak vengeance on Skunk's mother and wants the wizard to retaliate.

She is annoyed because her father refuses to accept her suggestion. The father has a mature perspective and sees beyond the surface and explores the philosophical and moralistic aspect of the entire situation. According to her father the wizard had unwillingly interfered with nature and had, thus, done a great deal of harm and deserved to be punished. According to him, the punishment meted out to the wizard is well-merited and retaliation is out of the question.

Thus, the story makes it clear that the perspective of a child and that of an adult is totally different. 6

Commonly Made Error

- Some students are not able to understand what is being asked in the question and end up writing summary of the story.

Answering Tips

- The answer must cover the general comments on the difference in perspective of a child and an adult to the same situation and relate it with the perspectives of Jo and Jack respectively.

Q. 5. A child's standpoint invariably is different from that of an adult. Justify the statement with reference to the story, 'Should Wizard Hit Mommy'.

[HOTS] [Comptt., Outside Delhi Set-I, II & III, 2012]

OR

An adult's perspective is different from that of a child. Why ? Answer with reference to the story "Should Wizard Hit Mommy."

[HOTS] [CBSE, SQP II, 2012] (NCERT)

Ans. Roger Skunk was awful smelling. No one wanted to come close to him. Therefore, he went to a wizard to make him smell sweet. The wizard made him smell like roses. Roger Skunk's mother did not like that and asked the wizard to make him the way he was. The wizard did the same. When the child heard this, she did not like the way her father had ended the story. She wanted Roger Skunk to be very sweet smelling and the mother to be punished. This shows that the opinion of adults and children differ.

The world of a child is quite different from that of an adult. It is a world of fantasy and wonder. There is no place for ugliness in their world. An adult's perspective is different from that of a child's because the adult has experience of life. On the other hand, the child's mind is not developed. The child is curious and inquisitive about things around him. The child's imaginary power is exemplary. He wants to get more and more knowledge about the things described to him. It is the duty of the adult to mould the behaviour of a child. Adults should give them the knowledge that things are not as they are seen. There is a difference of perspective regarding life between the two only because of mature and immature minds. 6

Q.6. At the end of the storytelling session, why does Jack consider himself 'caught in an ugly middle position' ? [Delhi / Outside Delhi 2018]

Ans. Distribution of marks:

Content: 3 marks

Expression: 3 marks

grammatical accuracy, appropriate words and spelling [1½ marks]

coherence and relevance of ideas and style [1½ marks]

- Jack possessive about the details his story
- does not take kindly to Jo's suggested changes
- 'the wizard hitting mommy'
- upset with daughter questioning parental authority
- felt to be in a position similar to that of his wife (in a cage with her)
- yet no sympathy for his wife
- could put neither his daughter to sleep nor help his wife paint the fence

Note- minimum one point for the daughter and one for the wife

[CBSE Marking Scheme 2018] 6

Detailed Answer : Jack was 'caught in an ugly middle position' because he was caught between two difficult situations. He was unable to escape the harsh realities of life rather he tried to habituate himself to the prevailing situation. He had to manage his family with two children, his daughter Jo and his son Bobby. And hence, Jack was entangled between two worlds. The first world belonged to Roger Fish, Roger Squirrel or Roger Chipmunk where he is telling the story of a wise owl and the Wizard with a magic wand.

The world upstairs consists of his children. Jo had raised a question about whether the Wizard should hit the mommy Skunk or not. Jack was unable to satisfy her as he was very cautious about the downside world where his wife Clare was painting. The house was not well kept and the household items were scattered. They were expecting a baby and he was supposed to go and help her as she was working hard to make both the ends meet. In this way, Jack was caught in an ugly middle position between the romantic world and the real world upstairs-downstairs.
