General Instructions: Same as CBSE Sample Question Paper–2023 (Solved).

SECTION–A (Reading Skills)

(20 Marks)

I. Read the passage given below:

(10 marks)

- (1) 'Birds of a feather flock together' is an old maxim. The teenagers too behave in a similar fashion, and are hence, more influenced by their peers than by elders. This is quite natural, for the teenager's mind is impressionable and is influenced by their peers in school or college. So great is this influence that there is a perceptible change in their behaviour and personality as soon as they enter college. The teenagers try to emulate their peers in the dress they wear, their hairstyle, clothes, language and behaviour so much that their personality gets completely transformed.
- (2) This happens because they directly relate with them, being in the same age group and class. Quite often, they idolize their peers and have them as their role model. The same is not the case with the adults, whom they perceive as old fashioned and irrelevant. This is on account of the ever-increasing generation gap, which exists between today's youth and elders.
- (3) The teenagers spend most of their time with their peer group and then with adults. It is therefore, quite natural for them to imbibe the values, culture and behaviour of the group. They often succumb to peer pressure and do things that they would not normally do like smoking, abusing, etc. Some under the influence of peer pressure improve their academic performance or sporting skills, while others take to drugs and crime for the momentary thrill and adventure it entails.
- (4) The influence of peers is also greater because they feel more comfortable and reassuring in their company. This is contrary to the awkwardness they feel, when interacting with adults, whom they perceive as old and stern.
- (5) Shrewd market men exploit this behavioural characteristic to promote the sale of products targeted for them. Thus, we find products like motorcycles, dresses, cosmetics and even lifestyle products being endorsed by peers. They soon become a craze with the teenagers. This in itself is an ample proof of the profound influence of the peers on the teenagers. This influence will increase, with increasing materialistic values permeating the society. It is because of this, parents ensure that they have the right peers in school and college, so that they do not remain distracted in their life.

Based on your understanding of the passage, answer the questions given below.

(1×10=10 marks)

- (i) There is a perceptible change in the behaviour of the children. Here 'perceptible' means _____.
 - (a) something in a huge amount
 - (b) scarcely
 - (c) extraordinary
 - (d) noticeable
- (ii) Cite a point in evidence, from the text, to suggest that the teenagers' minds are impressionable.
- (iii) According to the passage, how do the teenagers behave?
 - (a) They act sincerely.
 - (b) They act irresponsibly.
 - (c) They easily get influenced by their peers and act accordingly.
 - (d) They remain self-conscious and try to represent accordingly.
- (iv) Choose the correct antonym of the word 'permanent' from paragraph 4.
 - (a) permeate
 - (b) succumb
 - (c) emulate
 - (d) momentary
- (v) Which of the following statements is NOT CORRECT, according to the passage?
 - (a) Teenagers perceive the adults old fashioned and irrelevant.
 - (b) Adults do not easily get influenced by the teenagers.
 - (c) Peer pressure is an effect on an individual who gets encouraged and likes to imitate his age group.
 - (d) All teenagers fall into a bad company and start smoking and taking drugs.
- (vi) List the two contradictory statements made by the author about the teenagers.
- (vii) Why do the teenagers feel uncomfortable while talking to the adults?
- (viii) Parents want to be sure that their teenagers have good peers. Why do they want so?
- (ix) 'Birds of a feather flock together', the old adage used in paragraph 1 means:
 - (a) People feel depressed in a different environment.
 - (b) People of the same sort will be found together.
 - (c) Birds like to flock together.
 - (d) Young children like to play with birds.
- (x) Which is the apt title for the passage?
 - (a) The Positive and Negative Aspects of Peer Pressure
 - (b) Influential Era
 - (c) Phases of Life
 - (d) Idols of Teenagers

II. Read the passage given below:

(10 marks)

- (1) Advertising and promotion are essential elements of our total economic and social systems. All over the world, the large multinational corporations to medium and even small-firms recognise that there is no best alternative than promotion to communicate with consumers and promote them to purchase their products or services. Advertising directly exerts its influence on our lives, altering our thoughts and choices. So, no trade is ever imagined without promotional activities.

- (2) We have today different mediums of advertising that is through television, radio, hoarding, press advertisements, glow signs and leaflets. Amongst these, celebrity advertising is hard to ignore. Celebrity advertisement drives the sales of many products. They like to be in the public and seek attention through product endorsement and hence, enhance a brand. We, therefore, find firms hiring various techniques like distinctive advertising and other marketing gimmicks for making their advertisements stand out and get noticed.
- (3) This statistic illustrates the percentage of worldwide internet users who find brands or products through celebrity endorsements, sorted by age group. During the first quarter of 2017 survey period, it was found that 16 percent of all internet users aged 16 to 24 years discovered new brands through celebrity endorsements, whereas only 5 percent of internet users aged 55 to 64 get influenced through such practices.

- (4) When companies launch new products or increase their market share, they compete to be in the eyes of the consumers through endorsement. Be it in the brand of tea we drink, the bikes or cars we ride, the clothes and shoes we wear and many other products that we use or consume are endorsed and then they dominate the market and appeal the consumers' attention. Thus, advertising has become the lifeblood of business. Products not endorsed, remain neglected and buyers turn their ignorant eyes for such products. Endorsement of products creates top of the mind awareness in the customer.
- (5) No wonder why developed countries spend more money on advertising. Even in India, many MNCs spend crores of rupees on advertising their goods and services. The only hitch is that excessive advertising is distracting and at times irritating particularly when it is superimposed and becomes a nuisance. There is a need for enforcing some discipline in it by involving marketing ethics to prevent this powerful medium of degradation.

Based on your understanding of the passage, answer the questions given below.

(1 × 10 = 10 marks)

- (i) No trade is ever imagined without promotional activities.

True – if the statement agrees with the information

False – if the statement contradicts the information

Not Given – if there is no information given on this

- (ii) What is the given passage all about?
- (iii) What are the different mediums of advertising discussed in the passage?
- (1) television, radio, hoarding
 - (2) press advertisements

 - (4) glow signs and leaflets
- (a) (1) and (2) (b) (2) and (3)
- (c) (1) and (3) (d) (1), (2) and (4)
- (iv) Why is advertising deemed necessary for the product promotion?
- (v) According to the passage, which TWO statements from the following, can't be determined?
- (1) Advertising directly exerts its influence on our lives.
 - (2) Even underdeveloped countries spend more money on advertising.
 - (3) Advertising has become the lifeblood of business.
 - (4) Products unless endorsed, don't dominate the market.
- (a) (1) and (3) (b) (2) and (4)
- (c) (2) and (3) (d) (1) and (4)
- (vi) What does the survey of 2017 reveal?
- (a) 16 percent of all internet users aged 25 to 34 years discovered new brands through celebrity endorsements.
 - (b) 12 percent of internet users aged 55 to 64 years get influenced through such practices.
 - (c) 16 percent of all internet users aged 16 to 24 years discovered new brands through celebrity endorsements.
 - (d) 5 percent of internet users aged 45 to 54 years get influenced through such practices.
- (vii) Why are celebrities hired by the different firms?
- (viii) Find the word from the paragraph 3 which means the same as 'advocacy'.
- (a) influence (b) superimposed
 - (c) gimmick (d) endorsement
- (ix) What happens to the products if not endorsed?
- (x) What is the repercussion of excessive advertising?
- (a) Celebrities manage to mint hefty royalty.
 - (b) Product gets noticed and is sold incredibly.
 - (c) It becomes irritating and seems to be big nuisance.
 - (d) People don't trust that product.

Subject: Complaint against the staffs of government hospital

Sir

I am writing this letter on behalf of the patients admitted to the government hospital of C.R. Park on September 18, this year. I entered the emergency room for treatment of a painful arm. It was really disheartening to see the plight of the Covid patients admitted to the government hospital. The shortage of medical aid and assistance was a matter of big concern. But at the same time, the staffs too should have been considerate about the needs and emotional support of the patients.

Since the pain subsided after an injection, I was discharged from the hospital. I would like to know whether the government is cognizant of the lapses and shortcomings which are prevalent in the government hospitals.

I would feel relieved if appropriate measures are taken to tackle with the problem.

Yours sincerely

CHILD LABOUR

-By XYZ

India is a country of more than 130 crores of people. Here, child labour has been a major concern because it affects the children both mentally and physically, and it also destroys their bright future. Child labour is one the serious issues not only in India but also in other developing countries. It is widely prevalent in developing countries because of poverty. It is a great social problem since children are the builder of the nation. There were many laws enacted to prohibit child labour but they never came into force.

According to 2017 statistics, India is one of the leading countries in Asia and it has a whopping 33 million children employed in various forms of child labour. Children are forced to work in completely unregulated condition without adequate food, proper wages and rest. They are subjected to physical and emotional abuse. Factors such as poverty, lack of social security, the increasing gap between the rich and the poor have adversely affected children more than any other group. Unfortunately, due to the socio-economic problems, children are forced to do the labour work.

In order to eliminate child labour, first we should focus on socio-economic issues of the society. Government authorities and civil society organisations need to work in tandem to free children engaged in labour under terrible conditions. They need to be rescued from exploitative working conditions and supported with adequate education.

(B) VENKATESH PUBLIC SCHOOL, ARAVALI ADOPTS A VILLAGE

-By Krishna

2 June, 20XX: The cultural society along with the school management of Venkatesh Public School, Aravali adopted a village. It was certainly a nice experience. Our aim got fulfilled in the village because we went with a clear plan and mindset to teach the kids in the poor village and also with a plan to conduct various programs during the visit. We conducted a sports event for small kids where more than 50 kids actively participated in the competitions.

Games like cricket, running race and lemon in the spoon were conducted, and prizes were distributed to the winning kids in order to embrace their enthusiasm. We encouraged the kids to dance by playing the pieces of music. We found many kids with the great skill to dance, and encouraged them to polish their skill. Also, we found kids with good talent in the field of singing too. We set the stage, and many young talents were appreciated with the special gifts during the programme.

- (v) When Geoff tells him that Sophie met Danny Casey, his father looks at Sophie with disdain. He ignores her totally. He thinks that it is yet another ‘wild story’.
- (vi) Subbu was very humble, benevolent, kind and loyal to his work. He was generous and charitable. His creative ideas and readiness to say ‘yes’ for all situations made him extraordinary. His sweet and compassionate nature made him so popular.
- VI. (i) Derry appears to be an optimistic child post meeting with Mr Lamb. His outlook towards life was totally changed and he becomes more confident and learns to confront the adverse situation of life confidently.
- (ii) The Maharaja of Pratibandapuram was popularly known as the Tiger King as tiger dominated his life. After knowing the prediction declared by the chief astrologer, he started killing the tigers to avert his death. He banned tiger hunting for others and did an exemplary work of killing tigers. Tiger ruled his life, so he got the name as the Tiger King.
- (iii) In reality, the third level was a medium of escape for Charley from the unhappy modern world that is full of insecurity, fear, war and worry. Charley, the protagonist of the story, feels helpless and frustrated, and wants to get rid of the insecurities of modern life.

- VII. (i) The feeling of great remorse for neglecting their native language comes alive to the French teacher as well as the village elders. They realise that their true identity which was solely their language is at stake and is on the verge of extinction. The people were never serious about learning their language, until the day came when only German was to be taught in the schools of Alsace and Lorraine. The villagers are left with nothing they would feel proud of. It has been generally experienced that the greatness of something is felt in its absence. The innocent words of Franz shakes the hearts of the readers when he says, “Will they make them sing in German, even the pigeons?” The pain and anguish of the students and the teacher is evident and successfully indicates their sorrow. The back benches that were usually always empty, were occupied by the village people who were sitting quietly. Students in the class were quiet and were inquisitive to make the best of the last opportunity to learn their mother tongue.

- (ii) It was by chance that the peddler found himself at the Ramsjo Ironworks. It was a dark evening before Christmas. The peddler opened the gate and stood close to the furnace. It was nothing unusual for poor vagabond to have night shelter in the winter in front of the fire. The ironmaster noticed the peddler. He walked close up to him and looked him over very carefully. He mistook him for Captain Nils Olof, an old comrade of his regiment. He felt sorry that he had resigned from the regiment long ago. The ironmaster invited the peddler home as their special guest on Christmas. The peddler was not amused. He didn't want to get in any more trouble. He looked quite alarmed and declined the invitation.

Going to the manor house appeared like throwing himself voluntarily into the lion's den. He didn't want to go there. He only wanted to spend the night in the forge. He wanted to sneak away in the morning unnoticed. Then he thought of the thirty kronors. They were a bait and he couldn't resist the temptation and decline the invitation. The ironmaster only assumed that the peddler felt embarrassed because of his miserable clothing.

- VIII. (i) As a doctor, Sadao was taught that he should never let a person die if he could help. One evening, he finds a badly injured enemy soldier on the sea beach near his house. The man could die if not given proper medical aid. Now, Dr Sadao used his surgical skills and performed an operation on the man though he was enemy soldier. He tends him well and takes great care of him. In this way, Dr Sadao maintains his professional loyalty and he is able to save the life of the POW with his surgical skills. But Dr Sadao is a patriotic person also. Therefore, he informs everything to the old General. The General ensures him to send his private assassins to kill the man. However, Dr Sadao has saved that man with great effort. Naturally, he does not want any harm to come to that man. Therefore, he helps the man escape in a boat in the end of the story.

- (ii) Mr Lamb and Derry both were victims of physical disability. Mr Lamb had a tin leg and Derry had a burnt face. Both of them had to face social ignorance on account of their blemishes.

However, loneliness and a sense of estrangement were also experienced by Derry and Mr Lamb because of their disability. They were discarded in the society. Derry, who felt low because of his disability, was a victim of inferiority complex. He always thought people would have been criticising his burnt face. He became cynical as people got scared of him and didn't like to mingle with him. The acceptance that he received from Mr Lamb gives him a feeling of new beginning and soothing effect. Mr Lamb, on the other hand, was a person who craved for company and acceptance, and looked at the positive side of life.
